

Wholesale Increases Quicken Through July

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices posted in July the sharpest rise in five months to continue increasing at a faster pace than before President Nixon's Phase 2 wage-price controls, the government said today.

Last month's increase in prices of food and a broad range of industrial raw materials and manufactured goods was eight-tenths of one per cent, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The report said wholesale prices in the eight months of Nixon's Phase 2 controls rose at an annual rate of 5.7 per cent compared with 5.2 per cent in the eight months before the Phase 1 wage-price freeze imposed a year ago.

The bureau also reported that the nation's unemployment rate remained unchanged in July at 5.5 per cent of the work force and total employment was virtually unchanged at 83.4 million.

"The jobless rate in June and July was substantially below the rates of around 6 per cent which had prevailed since the close of 1970," the report said.

It added that average hourly earnings of some 50 million rank-and-file workers rose one cent per hour to $3.62 and were up $1.09 per week to $136.47.

Average earnings were up $8.53 weekly or 6.7 per cent over the past year, and after deduction for the 2.9 per cent rise in living costs, the average paycheck was $4.58 per week above a year earlier, the report said.

The report on wholesale prices said food prices rose 2.2 per cent in July; finished goods ready for retail sale went up one per cent; and industrial raw materials rose two-tenths of one per cent.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the food price increase was 1.8 per cent, finished manufactured goods eight-tenths of one per cent and industrial raw materials two-tenths of one per cent, the report said.

"This acceleration was due entirely to sizable increases in prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds in May and June and the particularly steep rise in July," it said.

July wholesale price increases included 3.2 per cent for farm products with sharp increases of 15.1 per cent for live poultry and 11.2 per cent for eggs. Processed foods and feeds went up 1.6 per cent with larger increases including 3.3 per cent for meats, poultry and fish and 2.1 per cent for dairy products.

Textile products rose four-tenths of one per cent, leather products five-tenths, fuels three-tenths, chemicals one-tenth, rubber products three-tenths, lumber products 1.3 per cent, pulp and paper products two-tenths of one per cent, machinery and equipment two-tenths, and mineral products three-tenths.

Ambulance Dispute Surfacing

By JACK SCHICKT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Signs of another ambulance fight between owners of two Sedalia ambulance companies have been surfacing the last two days.

At 9 p.m. Thursday a brick with a note attached was thrown through the window of the Pettis County Ambulance, Inc.

office, 626 East Fifth. The company is operated by Joe Wasson.

The message on the brick read as follows:

"Jerkie I'm going to break your neck instead of your legs the next time you jump a call." It was typewritten in capital letters.

Earlier Thursday, around 11:30 a.m., a Pettis County ambulance and an ambulance from the Community Ambulance Service, 2600 West Broadway, both arrived at the scene of an accident about a half-mile south of the Flat Creek Bridge on South Highway 65.

According to the Pettis County sheriff's officers and witnesses at the scene, an argument developed between Wasson and Rex Hutchings, co-owner of the Community Ambulance Service. Hutchings bought into the Community Service after returning here recently from Poplar Bluff, Mo., where he was in the ambulance business.

The injured man in the accident, Henry M. Dooley, 73, LaMonte, was taken to Bothwell Hospital in an ambulance from the Community Ambulance Service. He was treated for a broken shoulder and released.

Hutchings said, however, that he and Wasson did not even talk to each other at the scene of the accident. Wasson refused to comment.

In November of 1970 Wasson received a fractured ankle while on an ambulance call.

His vehicle was struck by an ambulance from the Mid-Missouri Ambulance Service, which at the time was owned by Hutchings.

Hutchings' son Tommy was driving the Mid-Missouri ambulance which struck Wasson's ambulance. He later was cited on a careless and imprudent driving charge in Pettis County Magistrate Court.

Hutchings was fined $25 in Sedalia police court in September, 1969, on a charge of assault in connection with an incident in which he and one of Wasson's employees reportedly got into a fight.

When asked to comment about the brick and its message, Hutchings said, "I would welcome a detailed, minute investigation by the sheriff's department to clear up the incident." He said he was not aware of the UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Arthur H. Bremer was found sane and convicted today of all charges arising out of the shooting of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and three other persons.

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Jury deliberations began today in the trial of Arthur H. Bremer, accused assailant of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace.

The jurors received the case after hearing the 21-year-old former busboy described by the prosecution as fully sane but called a schizophrenic by the defense, which contended he was not in control of his own actions the day Wallace and three others were wounded.

The case was given to the jury at 12:40 p.m. EDT after 4½ days of testimony.

"He knew he'd be arrested ... he knew he'd be on trial. This is his moment of glory," prosecutor Arthur A. Marshall Jr. told the jury in his closing argument.

McGovern Indicates Muskie Is Selection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern apparently has offered the vice-presidential nomination to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and was waiting today for the Maine senator to make up his mind whether to accept.

The two men met for two hours at Muskie's home Thursday night and discussed the fall campaign and the question of a new vice presidential nominee. Muskie's office said this morning.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., a very close friend of McGovern's who has been conferring with the South Dakota senator several times a day on the matter, said early Thursday afternoon:

"I can only assume he's offered it to Muskie. That must be the case."

Muskie held second spot on the ticket in 1968 under presidential nominee Hubert H. Humphrey.

As McGovern entered his Senate office late this morning he said: "We have just had a little visit last night. We'll have something to say later on."

Earlier McGovern had said an announcement about a replacement for Missourian Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton might not come before Monday.

McGovern confirmed, in response to questions, that this week he sounded out Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut and Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts about accepting the vice-presidential nomination. But all three said no.

McGovern said he did not push them on it because he had discussed it with them during the Democratic National Convention where they first refused.

Speculation over McGovern's next choice is centering around Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine. Muskie, who a year ago was considered the favorite for the presidential nomination, has had no comment on the No. 2 spot, which he held on the ticket in 1968.

McGovern met with a dozen newsmen in his Senate office as he attempted to lay to rest increasing speculation that he is having serious trouble getting a suitable running-mate.

As he denied those reports, McGovern said he is purposely taking his time in recommending a successor to Eagleton, who was persuaded by McGovern to withdraw from the ticket following disclosure that he had been hospitalized for depression stemming from nervous exhaustion and fatigue in 1960, 1964 and 1966.

"I can assure you the decision is being made the way it should be, with care and deliberation," McGovern said.

McGovern criticized the present system of selecting vice-presidential candidates, calling it "a major gamble."

He said presidential candidates are exhausted and rushed by the time they win their own nomination but "must get a vice-presidential nominee within a matter of hours."

LaMonte Fatality Recorded

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LaMONTÉ — Timothy Ray Coffee, 15, LaMonte, was struck and killed around 7:30 p.m. Thursday while he was walking east on the south side of the LaMonte Cemetery Road, approximately seven-tenths of a mile west of Route 127.

According to the Missouri Highway Patrol, the Coffee youth was struck by the right front of an eastbound 1967 Buick driven by Oscar Lee Green, 16, Route 2, LaMonte.

He was born Jan. 29, 1957, son of Marlon and Dorris Sneed Coffee, who survive of the home.

Also surviving are four brothers, Sgt. Marlon Coffee Jr., U.S. Air Force, Philippines; Spec. 4 Robert Coffee, U.S. Army, Fairbanks, Alaska; Pfc. Christopher Coffee, U.S. Marines, Okinawa; Anthony Coffee, of the home; three sisters, Mrs. Linda Hackler, LaMonte; Sandra and Mahala Coffee, of the home; his maternal grandparents, Lyman Sneed, Pacific, Mo., and Mrs. Emma Sneed, Troy; and his paternal grandparents, Dutch Coffee and Myrtle Southers, both of Enid, Okla.

Funeral services will be held at the LaMonte Baptist Church at 2 p.m. Sunday with the Rev. David Schwab officiating.

Burial will be in the LaMonte Cemetery. The body is at the Moore Funeral Home here.

Vote Could Abolish County Office

Pettis County voters will be presented a chance to abolish or retain the office of County Superintendent of Schools in the Tuesday primary.

In accordance with state law, when a county superintendent has no more than three schools under his supervision with no more than 250 students, the county court may place the abolishment issue before the voters on the August primary ballot of the next presidential election year.

Pettis County met the qualifications that statute in early March, 1971, when Striped College was annexed into District 200 as a result of a vote by parents of Striped College students.

At that time, only High Point, Sweet

Springs and Oak Grove-Dresden school districts remained under the supervision of County Superintendent of Schools George Thompson, who is also president of the Sedalia board of education. Since that time, High Point School has also been annexed into District 200.

Thompson said at the time of the Striped College annexation that he had already petitioned the county court and the county clerk, advising them he would be willing to abolish the office, effective at the end of his present term.

Should the office be abolished, Thompson reported earlier, schools without superintendents would operate their facilities through the assistance of a temporary superintendent of schools, aided by the county clerk, the state board of education and the county court, as indicated by state law.

Thompson has also said that he felt students benefitted from annexations because of superior facilities available at larger schools.

Abolishing the office of county superintendent would mean a substantial cash savings in the county's general revenue fund, which is derived from county property taxes. Figures released in February in the county's financial statement revealed an outlay of $7,869.28 for the total operation of the office.

Catholics Softening On Divorce

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Through the years, countless numbers of Roman Catholics who have divorced and remarried have been prohibited — to their distress — from receiving church sacraments, including Communion. But approved ways now are gradually developing for them to do it.

Some dioceses are welcoming them back into full participation — if they themselves assert a "good conscience" about it.

The rules barring them from sharing in the Church's central rites have long been a source of anguish to many American Catholics involved in remarriages, as well as to their wives or husbands, who often are Protestants.

Generally, under Catholic law banning the breakup of a valid marriage, Church members who have divorced anyhow and remarried still remain cut off

Baton Rouge, La., recently announced that his diocese was setting up procedures for recognizing "good conscience" cases when divorced and remarried Catholics sincerely believe their first marriages were invalid, in spite of the apparent impossibility of getting it officially annulled by the Church.

"The Church has a pastoral responsibility of healing and forgiveness, following the example of Christ," Bishop Tracy said.

Boonville Is Seeking Tourist Dollars

By LYN McDANIEL
The Bonville Daily News
For The Associated Press

BOONVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Rejecting the sole image as home of the Missouri Training School for Boys, a group of Boonville residents is organizing to make the city a tourist attraction.

They feel Boonville has the kind of history any town would envy and not lost to them is an estimate by the Missouri Tourism Commission that tourists spend about $1 billion a year in the state.

Boonville dates back to 1810 and has ties with Daniel Boone and his sons, Kit Carson, Lewis and Clark. George Caleb Bingham, Thomas Hart Benton, several statesmen of the Territorial days and the famed journalist, Walter Williams. In another area of fame, there are ties to Frank and Jesse James.

The area was also the scene of the first battle of the Civil War — a full month before the Battle of Bull Run — a second Civil War battle, the first state fair, several 1812 forts, the oldest existing theater west of the Alleghenies, the beginning of the Santa Fe Trail and, a mile away, the first newspaper and first town, Franklin, west of St. Louis.

With this ripe historical background, the Friends of Historic Boonville began organizing a year ago to save a barn that the county court proposed to raze as a fire hazard. The barn, located behind the county jail — the latter, built in 1848, is still used — was the site of one of the last legal hangings in Missouri in January, 1930.

The Friends purchased the barn for $100. Restoration to its condition when new in 1876 is almost complete and the group hopes to obtain the jail eventually.

Push By South Viets Along Key Highway

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese infantrymen drove the North Vietnamese from their last two major strongpoints along Highway 13 north of Saigon today, military sources reported. They predicted the road between the capital and An Loc, which has been out for 119 days, would soon be open all the way.

The Saigon troops killed 28 North Vietnamese in fighting that cleared bunkers American forces had left at a fire base they abandoned two miles south of Tau O. The bunkers were so sturdy that U.S. air strikes failed to smash them, the sources said, and the South Vietnamese had to flush out the North Vietnamese with infantry and tank assaults.

No South Vietnamese casualties were reported.

The South Vietnamese overran a second North Vietnamese strong point on the highway just south of the destroyed Tau O bridge and nine miles south of An Loc.

The sources said only small pockets of resistance remain along the 60-mile road from Saigon north to An Loc, and these are not expected to hamper movement seriously. But they said the road must be cleared of mines, and the bridges must be repaired.

Heavy North Vietnamese assaults on An Loc eased off a month ago. The government appears to be in firm control of the provincial capital after three months of bloody fighting.

Two Arrests In Same Day For Sedalian

A Sedalia man was taken into custody by Sedalia police Thursday afternoon and charged with leaving the scene of an accident. About five and a half hours later police arrested him again on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

James L. Schondelmeyer, 44, 1217 South Kentucky, was arrested by police about 4:30 p.m. Thursday after an eye-witness saw a 1958 Chevrolet strike a parked 1967 Buick around 4 p.m. at Fourth and Kentucky. The Buick is owned by Richard C. Lindemann, 42, 718 East 14th.

The witness wrote down the license number of the 1958 Chevrolet and police later traced the car to Schondelmeyer. Schondelmeyer, who denied driving the hit-and-run vehicle, was released by police around 5 p.m. and was told to appear in police court on Monday.

About 10 p.m. Thursday police arrested Schondelmeyer in the 100 block of South Ohio on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He later was released on $200 bond. He is scheduled to appear in Sedalia police court Aug. 21 on the latter charge.

In other reports Friday, police said that vandals punctured tires on five autos Wednesday night or early Thursday morning while the cars were parked in front of owners' residences. A sharp instrument, probably an ice pick, was used to cause the damage, police reported.

Persons who own the vandalized autos are Lindy Tarwater, 2510 Albert Lee; George W. Scott, 2402 Albert Lee; Mrs. Herman Myers, 1003 Royal; Russell Lewis, 2404 Albert Lee; and Jerry Brosch, 920 Sue Lane.

Cecil H. Rider, 1400 South Missouri, told police someone threw a rock through a window at his residence around 9:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Raymond Alford, 184 Colonial Lane, told police someone hurled a rock into the door of his home around 9:50 p.m. Thursday.

David Moore, 2901 Skyline Drive, told police thieves stole a 1971 Honda motorcycle Wednesday while the vehicle was parked at 331 Green Ridge Road.

Gail Gondeck, Addison, Ill., called Sedalia police from his Illinois home Thursday afternoon to report $300 in Indian artifacts and clothing had been taken while he was in Sedalia last month at the Indian Pow Wow. Gondeck told police the items probably were taken July 23.

brick-throwing until a Democrat-Capital reporter told him about it.

The three ambulance companies here, Pettis County, Community and Sedalia, are called to accident scenes by the police on a rotation basis. One company is supposed to be on call each month.

According to police, the Community Ambulance Service is on call for August. In July the Sedalia Ambulance Service, 3004 South Ingram, was on call and in June the Pettis County Ambulance Service was on call.

Hutchings said that he received a private call to come to the scene of the accident. The Pettis County sheriff's office, however, sent Wesson to the scene.

According to a spokesman at the sheriff's office, the county has only recently started to honor the city's rotation plan for the three ambulance companies. He said Wesson was called "because he was available." A Sedalia ambulance did not arrive at the scene.

Hutchings three weeks ago moved to Sedalia from Poplar Bluff, where he operated an ambulance service for about a year and a half.

"This thing has been going on all the time," Hutchings said, referring to the competition between the ambulance companies in Sedalia. "I would like to see somebody find out what's going on."

"It's the public who are paying the price, not the ambulance companies," he added.

Supremacist Advertising Is Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has ruled that J. B. Stoner may continue campaign broadcasts saying, "The main reason why niggers want integration because the niggers want our white women."

The Constitution protects such language even though government officials may find it personally repulsive, the commission decided Thursday in a case arising when Atlanta Mayor Sam Massell urged broadcasters to reject the ads on grounds they presented a "danger of violence."

Stoner is affiliated with the National States Rights party, but is running in the Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate seat held by Sen. David H. Gambrell. One of 15 candidates in the balloting Tuesday, Stoner is not expected to make a strong showing.

"If there is to be free speech," the FCC said, "It must be free for speech that we abhor and hate as well as for speech that we find tolerable or congenial."

Acting as a board, three of the seven commissioners—Robert E. Lee, H. Rex Lee and Richard E. Wiley—delivered the ruling in a letter to NAACP representative Lonnie King who joined the mayor and representatives of the Atlanta Community Coalition on Broadcasting and the Anti-Defamation League in the complaint.

In Atlanta, Stoner called the FCC ruling "a victory for freedom of speech for us white Christians."

He said, "As it is in general, Jews and niggers have freedom of speech, but not us white Christians."

Fertility Questions

After Menopause

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would greatly appreciate it if you would answer my questions. I stopped menstruating abruptly when I was 42 years old and I am now 47. My husband and I would like to know if it would be safe for us to stop using contraceptives. Do you think there would be any chance of my getting pregnant again? That the last thing we would want because our family is grown up and married.

Dear Reader — Every woman, particularly in your age group, should have a regular examination by her doctor. One reason is for the early detection of cancer of the cervix, which can be cured if found soon enough. Another is for examination of her breasts.

During such an examination, a doctor can do a test which tells him what the nature of the cells are that line the vagina. This helps in identifying whether the woman has sufficient female hormone or not and therefore is an index of the function of ovaries.

I don't like to tell any woman that she can't get pregnant unless she has had an examination and a series of studies. It's always possible.

However, I must add that it is most unlikely that a woman who has gone through the change of life and has not menstruated for two years would get pregnant. Some women who are not menstruating have not actually gone through the change of life. This is one reason an examination by the doctor is indicated.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My mother is 50 years old and she is going to the hospital for some tests. A CBC, SMA and EKG. Please tell me what these are.

Dear Reader — A CBC means a complete blood count, which includes counting the number of red blood cells and looking at their characteristics, counting the number of white blood cells and separating them into the various types of white blood cells plus looking at their characteristics on a slide. In most laboratories it also includes measuring the hemoglobin for iron in the blood to be certain that there is no anemia.

The SMA is a term for an automated method of measuring the different chemical elements in the blood, like the blood sugar. With one small sample of the patient's blood, the analyzer accomplishes many tests which used to be done laboriously by hand by laboratory technicians. It essentially provides information concerning chemical balance and chemical content of the body.

An EKG refers to an electrocardiogram, and is properly called an ECG. The older term EKG arises from the fact that much of the early electrocardiographic study was done by German speaking people and the word for heart in German is Kardio, as opposed to the English cardio. It is of course a measurement of the electrical activity of the heart to detect heart disease.

Start your Own Lending Library

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Beryl, who is worried about unreturned books, should start her own lending library. Each book needs a used envelope and a blank card fastened to the back, library style. Cut cards about 3-by-5 inches out of lightweight cardboard. On the end of the card print the title of the book and the author's name. The remaining space will be for the borrower's name and the date the book is to be returned, which I suggest be two weeks. Put same date on the pocket. You keep the card while the book is out on loan, and if not returned in a month's time call to remind the borrower. We use this method in our Scout House library that has volunteer workers. If she prefers regular cards and pockets, such as we use they can be bought in most bookstores.—CATHERINE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Please tell me how to remove the odor from plastic rainwear. I have two rain items that smell like a skunk. I have tried hanging them in the fresh air but the odor returns when they are folded again.—MRS. N. A.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve concerns that last bit of lipstick left in a tube. I have often wondered why they do not come with a tiny brush so when one has used up the top part they have the brush to get what remains in the tube. I used to throw my worn ones away but now I have bought myself a little brush to use for that purpose. Lipsticks cost so much and with everything so high we want to use up everything possible.—KATHRYN

Thirsk and Allin Upstage PGA Tourney Favorites

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — "Men, I'm sorry I made you miss your dinners," apologized Stan Thirsk with a grin, "but I really enjoyed it."

That's the way the virtual golfer unknown from Shawnee Mission, Kan., signed off his news conference after stunning reporters by strolling off the Oakland Hills Country Club course with a two-under par 68.

But the 44-year-old Thirsk—

Thursday for a share of the lead with Bud Allin after the first round of the 54th PGA National Championship.

Most reporters had their stories all wrapped up and were ready to go home, having written about another relatively obscure pro. Allin, who came in early with a 68 and appeared certain to stay on top alone.

Although the 27-year-old Allin's name isn't a household word either among golf followers, he did win $55,786 last year in his first season on the tour and was at least vaguely familiar to the more than 300 writers covering the prestigious event.

Allin and Thirsk are leading such notables as Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

Palmer was among the early leaders and finished with a one-under 69. The PGA is the only major championship he has not won.

Trevino, criticizing himself for using the wrong club four times, shot a 73 while Nicklaus was in at 72 along with Player.

Joining the one-under group was another nearly unknown pro, Larry Gilbert of Fayetteville, Tenn. Jerry Heard, who has already won two tour events year, was at 69 also, along with Ray Floyd and Jim Jamieson.

Two days of rain prior to the first round made things somewhat damp for the field of 139 and the record first day PGA crowd of 19,200. Brief rains hit again Thursday along with brisk winds at times.

Sam Snead, 60-year-old relic from another era of golfing greatness, was one of a large group matching par 70 over the 7,054-yard layout. Also in the group were Richard Crawford, Rod Funseth, John Miller, Dan Sikes and Jim Wiechers.

Gene Sarazen, marking his 50th anniversary in the PGA—which the 70-year-old won in 1922 and 1923, carded a 79.

Trims .19 Off Mark

Gary Hall Establishes Men's Medley Record

CHICAGO (AP) — When it comes to breaking records, Gary Hall isn't the least bit fussy. He doesn't even mind breaking his own.

"I don't care whose record I break," Hall said Thursday after shaving .19 of a second off his world record in the 400-meter individual medley as the second day of U.S. Olympic Swimming trials were completed.

Hall, who had already qualified for Munich in the 200-meter butterfly, sped through the chilly waters at Portage Park in 4:30.81 to better the record of 4:31.01 he set in Los Angeles two years ago.

Afterwards, he said the fact he had already made the team kept him loose enough to try for the record. But he said he wasn't really expecting it.

"I'm not even sure I'm at my peak," he added. "It's really hard to say. I just hope I don't drop off before we get to Munich."

There were two other near-record performances on Thursday's five-event program.

Mark Spitz, who shattered

the world's record in the 200-meter butterfly Tuesday, missed by eight-hundredths of a second breaking his own world's record in the men's 200-meter freestyle.

And 15-year-old Keena Rothammer of Santa Clara, Calif., won the women's 400-meter freestyle in 4:21.99, about eight-tenths of a second above the world's record held by Shane Gould of Australia.

The highlight of the evening was the 200-meter race in which Spitz edged Steve Genter, who does gyrations to work himself up and shaves his head for big races.

Fred Tyler of Jacksonville, Fla., finished third, edging out John Kinsella, the world record holder in the 1,500-meter freestyle. Kinsella is expected to make the team in the 400-meter and the 1,500.

Genter, a student at UCLA, cut almost three seconds from his previous best time. He delighted the crowd with his antics and his shaved head, which has earned him the nickname "Curly."

Hall, who comes from Garden Grove, Calif., won his event easily. He beat Tim McKee of Newtown, Pa., the second place finisher, by almost two seconds. Steve Furniss of Santa Ana, Calif., was third and also qualified for Munich.

Some Players May Miss Tilt

Sedalia may be without some key players in tonight's Sedalia-Boonville Central Missouri Bar Johnson League makeup game, which was set up by CMBJ president Roy Shilharvey. Central.

"I told them last week when they tried to schedule a game between us and Boonville that we couldn't play because too many of our players work on Friday nights," said manager "Salty" Schumaker, who was suspended by Shilharvey for the remainder of the season for hitting Columbia umpire Cookie Whitesides in Tuesday's game between the two teams in Boonville.

Tom Morgan, the first base coach and one of the Sedalia relief pitchers has taken over the team for the remainder of the year. Morgan could not be reached for comment Friday.

However one source did indicate that "there should be enough players for the game, but I'm not sure how many of the key players will be missing."

Larry Neville, the starting Sedalia catcher, echoed Schumaker's comments Thursday afternoon. "I don't know how we can get enough for the game ... it's like he (Schumaker) said, too many of us have jobs and work on Friday nights ... I do and so does centerfielder David Pirtle."

Shilharvey had to set up the game due to Boonville's 9-0, forfeit victory over Sedalia Tuesday night following the Schumaker - Whitesides incident.

He went on to say that if Boonville should win tonight's game, Sedalia would have to play Columbia Saturday night in Columbia to make up the July 2 rainout.

Although Boonville also has another make up game at Tipton, which was rained out on July 23, Shilharvey made no mention of that contest.

Currently, Boonville is one game behind Sedalia in the western division standings with a record of 11-5; Sedalia has a one-game edge on them with a mark of 12-4. But a win by Boonville tonight would throw the division into a tie.

On the other hand, should Sedalia win, the western division championship would belong to them.

Wynn, Williams May Play Again

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — If Calvin Griffith is persuasive enough, the last of baseball's 300-game winners could pitch against the last of the 400 hitters Sept. 19 or Sept. 20 in an American League game at Metropolitan Stadium.

Early Wynn, who posted a career pitching record 300-244, has asked the Minnesota Twins president for permission to pitch at least one inning in a game this year so that his career would span five decades.

Griffith is mulling over the request, and admitted that if he went along with it, he might as well talk Ted Williams into the act.

Wynn, 52, who joined the Hall of Fame this year, is managing the Twins' Class A team at Orlando, Fla. Williams, 54, the Hall-of-Famer who hit .406 in vers and Derek Sanderson, who jumped from the Boston Bruins and J.C. Tremblay who left the Montreal Canadiens.

Tom Eagleton proved his fitness as a man

WASHINGTON — Like a popsicle on the cruellest July day, Sen. Tom Eagleton's dream was melting right in his hand. But as the last heartbreak drops splattered around his shoelaces, he took it like a man.

Tom Eagleton sought no other man on whose shoulders he could weep publicly.

There he stood in a crushing moment of political ignominy, the first man in this nation's long history to be driven from a Presidential ticket. As the axe fell, surely his heart pounded and his head throbbed, but Tom Eagleton took it like a man.

He delivered no pity-seeking tirade against "the Eastern establishment press" whose editorial had been in large measure the killers of his dream.

In the throes of devastating defeat, of personal tragedy, when even the strongest of men are excused some manifestation of self-pity, some feeling of having been kicked around, Tom Eagleton did not whimper.

There he stood, knee-deep in signs of abandonment, even betrayal. The Presidential contender who had vowed "one thousand per cent" support was on network TV, delivering his political death sentence after knuckling under to the pressures of money and old politics.

Still, Tom Eagleton took it like a man. From him, no vindictive cries of rule or ruin. No paranoid utterances about how he would refuse to support the ticket if they took the nomination away from him because of such "stinking" pressures.

Eagleton agreed to take to the stump for George McGovern and whoever took the torch that was being wrested from his once-eager grasp.

Even though you knew for days that Eagleton had to step down, you watched the man through his hours of agony knowing that he was displaying mental health and emotional stability far beyond that of the men who worked hardest to demean him.

You hoped that Eagleton's children could comprehend this, that they could understand that their father delivered up the cup of glory not in shame, but with a courage that makes us all feel ashamed of the prejudices, ignorances and taboos that still dominate American public life.

You hoped those children could understand their father's only mistake was that he accepted one of those taboos only to the extent he felt it necessary to try to hide the simple truth that he once was treated for an illness of which many thousands of Americans are cured every year.

His heart supercharged and his mind fevered by ambition, Tom Eagleton had sat by the telephone in Miami Beach, waiting and hoping for McGovern to call and tap him as the vice presidential nominee. Eagleton surely had decided, after talking with his wife about it, that if the call came he would not tell about his periods of depression years ago or the shock treatments which apparently cured him.

Tom Eagleton assumed that if he revealed his medical past he would not be the vice presidential nominee. Four years of laudable service as a United States senator would weigh for naught against fears of McGovern and his advisers that the Republicans would exploit his medical past. Yes, Richard M. Nixon would make pious declarations about how he had ordered his political hatchet men to stay off the subject of Eagleton's health — then he would talk endlessly about his vice president who was "strong in a crisis" and who, of course, had never been hospitalized for psychiatric care.

Eagleton was probably right in assuming that if he revealed his medical past he would not become the nominee. So political ambition caused him to gamble — and stumble into tragedy.

Let us not utter sanctimonious contempt of "political ambition." Without it, who would ever aspire to the Vice Presidency, an onerous office which one occupant likened to "a warm bucket of spit?"

Without "political ambition," without the lust for power and glory, who would even seek the crushing burdens of the Presidency?

Let us pray the ambition which produced the mistake that brought calamity to Tom Eagleton and his family will bring benefit to the nation. Let us hope that a nation which has had drunks, lechers, cripples, victims of melancholia in the Presidency can now openly face the fact that psychiatric care does not disqualify people for high public office.

Perhaps one day Tom Eagleton's children will say proudly to their children: "It was your grandfather who taught the nation that a vice president who needed a psychiatrist and saw one was a lot less dangerous than one who might need one and never admit it."

And they can add that Eagleton taught us this by showing that, in a moment, of seemingly unbearable stress, he was a man.

Count me out on numbers

By DOUG KNEIBERT

First they assigned you a Social Security number. Then they dropped the exchanges of all the telephone numbers (adding more numbers in the process) and dreamed up the zip-code.

As if all that wasn't enough, now they've done away with the Sedalia postmark. And substituted — you guessed it.

A number.

Where up until recently that letter you write Mom once a week or so bore the postmark "Sedalia," it now carries the designation "U.S. Postal Service-MO-653."

I submit that we've lost something here, sacrificed on the altar of Efficiency. Where before the identity of Sedalia was clearly stamped on mail sent out to the four corners of the world, announcing for all to see that this particular letter came from SEDALIA, MO., now we are left with MO-653. Somehow it just isn't the same.

The culprit behind all of this seems to be something called the "Area Mail Processing" plan, termed "one of the newest innovations of the U.S. Postal Service."

So far, in this area, the AMP has sent postmarks of the following area towns the way of the Do-Do bird: Marshall, Cole Camp, Knob Noster, LaMonte, Lincoln, Slater, Blackburn, Calhoun, Climax Springs, Edwards, Emma, Gilliam, Green Ridge, Houstonia, Hughesville, Ionia, Malta Bend, Miami, Nelson, Otterville, Smithton, Syracuse, Arrow Rock, Florence, Grand Pass, Mora and Napton.

How can you eliminate such postmarks as Knob Noster, Arrow Rock and Climax Springs, and the world not be the poorer for it?

Now Warsaw, Windsor and Sweet Springs have joined the list, effective last Wednesday.

To the Postal Service's credit we must point out that postmarks remain on in-city mail in the above towns, and you can even get the local postmark stamped on outgoing mail if you drop it in a special slot.

But not Sedalia's mail — we're stuck with MO-653, like it or not. This is rank discrimination.

Seriously, we realize that the Postal Service is just trying to do its job better and more efficiently, and if postmarks get in the way — zip! No room for sentimentalists there.

It's the mentality behind this mania for numbers that disturbs me. One of these days you might wake up to find out that you're no longer George Smith, but No. 334-752-894.

Brave New World is closer than you think. The West German parliament recently considered a bill that would have assigned a number to each person upon birth. It would remain with him until he died.

Individuals of the world, unite! You have nothing to lose but your numbers.

Have any old comic books stashed away in your attic? Don't throw them out, they may be worth money.

I have received a catalogue from Kelly's Comics in Chicago, which specializes in vintage comic books. Prices are steadily going up for such greats as the Human Torch, Sub-Mariner, Captain America, Plastic Man, the early Supermans and Batmans, and that ultimate in women's lib, Wonder Woman. My own particular favorite was Captain Marvel.

Here's a trivia test any comic book connoisseur should be able to answer: What was the name of Airboy's plane?

Answer: Birdie.

Walch and McCune are GOP choices

In the two-way Republican race for nomination as presiding judge of the County Court, we feel that Harry Walch offers voters the best choice. The race is an interesting one and could well be close, since Walch is facing a qualified opponent in Glenn E. Lower.

McCune's extensive background in farming would serve him well in assessing farm and rural property on a more equitable basis than has been demonstrated in the past.

The GOP contest in the new 117th District has incumbent Guss Salley opposed by two challengers, Richard Banks Jr. and John E. Sanders. The new district, carved out last fall, includes parts of Benton, Johnson and Henry Counties, as well as the southern part of Pettis County.

We think Rep. Salley, who has had four terms in the Missouri House from the old 116th District, is the best choice, and will continue to better serve his constituents as he gains seniority.

This newspaper would like to correct an oversight at this time by endorsing Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick over his primary opponent, James J. Askew, for a third term.

Well-known in this area and a proven, capable administrator, Jim Kirkpatrick should be renominated on the Democratic ticket for the post he has held so well since 1964.

In the Republican contest for county assessor, William P. McCune would appear to have the edge over his opponent, Albert W. Newman. We think McCune has better articulated his understanding of the assessor's office and the kinds of improvements he would like to see made.

While recognizing Lower as a strong candidate, The Democrat-Capital gives Walch the edge, based largely on his past record in community and civic affairs.

As president of the Sedalia-Pettis County United Fund for the past several years, Walch has demonstrated the strong administrative talents needed to get the job done. In several other organizations, both public and private, he has been a leader.

We think this same take-charge ability to see a problem through to a successful solution would serve him well as presiding judge of the County Court.

Voters, we think, are faced with two equally qualified candidates for the Republican nomination as judge of the Eastern District, in Jack R. Shedd and Fred G. Kraft. Both men appear to have some solid ideas on county government, and have added a youthful touch to the race.

In the Republican contest for county assessor, William P. McCune would appear to have the

Behavior controls studied by Army

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Experiments to control human behavior with science fiction devices are being conducted secretly at the Army's high-fenced Harry Diamond Laboratories in Washington.

To perfect the electronic behavior machines, Army scientists are spending $50,000 this year and asking $200,000 over the next two years. Ultimately, human guinea pigs will be used to test the devices.

Although a classified memorandum in our hands specifies the tests are for riot and civil disturbance control, the memo admits the general purpose is "short-time-span control of human behavior."

The control will be exercised through a devilish complex of flickering, steady and unsee light rays, audible sounds and other tones too high for the human ear to hear.

The main problem, the memo states, is that the "novel and unique devices-systems" must be constructed so they will "cause no permanent damage to target personnel" and to innocent bystanders.

With this humanitarian thought recorded, the memo goes on to summarize the "ultrasonics, audible aversive stimuli, unique communications techniques and methods of speech interruption" which make up the Army's "physiological-psychological studies."

Translated into plain English, the technical memorandum envisions such devices as these:

✓ Flickering light of varying intensity which can throw off the normal electric rhythms of the brain. This leads to confusion and can even break down the brain's ability to control the body.

✓ Sound outside the human hearing range which can cripple a person's ability to function. Audible sound, some of it so loud as to cause unendurable pain, can have the same general effect.

✓ Electronic sound devices which can interrupt, distort or mask speeches by troublemakers at demonstrations.

While the Army memo complains that "the present state of development of sound and light devices is not adequate to achieve the desired objective," it notes hopefully that the potential workability of at least "two systems has been shown."

By fiscal 1974, the art will be far enough advanced so that the "development and laboratory testing of hardware (the behavior equipment) will be emphasized."

When we contacted the Army to find out whether the tests were leading to a 1984 world of thought control, a spokesman pooh-poohed the possibility.

"This program is so limited," he insisted. "Why, it's just to see what the hell it takes to control a crowd as painlessly as possible. We think there may be a better way than billy clubs and pistols."

Mao's Women — The women around China's supreme ruler, Chairman Mao Tse-tung, apparently are rising in power. Senate leaders Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., reported to President Nixon after their recent China visit that Madame Mao, the chairman's wife, seemed to wield great political clout.

Previously, she had been reported on the downside after Premier Chou En-lai's triumph over the militant wing of the party. But Mansfield and Scott noted that Chou made a point of consulting Madame Mao. It also appears that the political fortunes of Mao's niece, Wang Hai-jung, are also on the rise. An intelligence report reveals that she had accumulated much more political weight than her official title suggests. She is an assistant foreign minister.

Smokey's Success — Smokey the Bear, the firefighting figure who began 20 years ago in dungarees and a weather beaten hat, now can afford Brooks Brothers suits. The famous beast earns more than $200,000 a year in royalty payments for his creators, the Agriculture Department, which has sold 40 Smokey the Bear commercial licenses. To its credit, the government has taken pains not to allow Smokey's puritanical image to be abused. The government recently took action, for example, against the Smokey Bar in Reseda, Calif., for displaying Smokey's slogan and pictures on its walls.

Free Maintenance — Wealthy Texas cattle rancher Wilson Edwards sends his antique airplanes to Webb Air Force Base for free maintenance. Only last week, Air Force employees spent more than 300 hours painting, polishing and repairing a vintage British Spitfire for the rich rancher. At least five World War II planes have been refurbished in the past few years for Edwards' antique collection. Wing Commander Malcolm Ryan justified this expenditure of the taxpayers' money because Edwards's "historic relics" are displayed at local celebrations to boost "the morale and esprit of the troops."

Spy Discrimination — American jurisprudence, it seems, is gentler with Russian-born than American-born spies. Three years ago, a federal court voided the conviction of John Butenko, an American convicted of espionage conspiracy, pending hearings on whether the government's evidence against him was improperly obtained. But Butenko has remained behind bars because he has been unable to raise bond. Meanwhile, his alleged Russian co-conspirator, Igor Ivanov, is at home. He was quickly bailed out by the Soviet embassy after only a few days in jail and sent home to "visit sick relatives."

Lots of people play bridge for relaxation but the ones who play good bridge don't relax when actually playing their cards.

It is just a cinch for South to relax and win the first diamond trick with the ace. The contract looks ironclad so why think? If he makes that play he is likely to wind up cursing the gods of chance.

He enters dummy with jack of spades and loses a trump finesse. West leads a second diamond and East is on lead with the king. Now if East shoots back a club South will play low. West will take the queen; get out with a card in any other suit and wait for the setting trick with the club king.

Bad luck indeed. Three cards out of three wrong but unnecessary. South loses nothing by ducking the first diamond. The suit is continued. South wins; enters dummy with that same jack of spades and loses that same trump finesse. West has no way to get his partner on lead.

South wins the return; manages to ruff dummy's last diamond; draws two more rounds of trumps; cashes the spades; leads a club; fineshes his nine and shows West his hand.

West has to lead away from his remaining club honor or give South a ruff and discard. Simple, once South stayed awake at trick one.

which means they will produce a positive Wasserman reading, even though cured. Please make it clear to your millions of readers, Ann, that if they get a positive Wasserman report they should seek additional medical advice to learn whether or not they still have the disease or if they fall into that 10 per cent category of Wasserman-fast individuals. (P.S. The reason you didn't understand my telegram was because I wanted to avoid using the word syphilis. It is still considered a dirty word by Western Union.) — B.B.Q. Of St. Petersburg (M.D.)

Dear M. D.: Thank you. Re-opening this situation offers me an opportunity to say more on the subject. A person who has never had syphilis might get a positive Wasserman reading if he once had measles, mumps, malaria, leprosy or pneumonia.

As for Western Union, the word "syphilis" is acceptable now — a far cry from 50 years ago when Bernard MacFadden was put in jail for printing the word in a newspaper.

Black Lung Disease Both Social, Medical Problem

By RICHARD CARELLI

Associated Press Writer

HUNTINGTON, Va. (AP) — These sickly men are everywhere in Appalachia—from the tiny, tired coal camps to the teeming, thriving cities.

Their symptoms always are the same—the wheezing voice, the gasping breath, the continual spitting.

They are the victims of black lung.

The U.S. Public Health Service several years ago counted 100,000 sufferers of pneumoconiosis, a disease of the lung caused by inhalation of dust particles. The Encyclopaedia Britannica calls it an occupational chest disease. Those who live with it call it Black Lung.

"The 100,000 figure probably is outmoded," Dr. Donald Rasmussen, an expert on respiratory diseases, said. "I have seen estimates that state 50 to 60 per cent of the 350,000 miners applying for pneumoconiosis benefits should qualify."

Rasmussen heads up an Appalachian Regional Hospital clinic designed to diagnose lung ailments.

It is also a debilitating, life-shortening disease, much like emphysema. The coal dust permeates the air sacs of the lung, hardening them and impeding their ability to take up oxygen from the air. In the end the black lung victim may suffer heart trouble, and will certainly suffer a tiring, frustrating struggle for life's breath. Slow suffocation.

Neither is it a new disease. Chronicled 2,000 years ago, it was a critical problem in England in the 1920s, and in Australia. In fact anywhere man descended into the earth to dig out coal for energy.

This nation's first real commitment to dealing with the affliction came in 1969 when the landmark Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act was established, providing, according to Rasmussen, "some very adequate measures for dealing with the dust contents of mines."

It also provided benefits for thousands of stricken miners.

A 1972 amendment extends benefits to an estimated 100,000 to 150,000 additional persons.

The amendment will affect men such as Houston Richardson and Ernie Morris, who in the past have been unsuccessful in compensation attempts.

Richardson, a 37-year veteran of the mines in West Virginia's Greenbrier County, has to sleep sitting up, averaging just two hours of sleep each night.

He discovered in 1962 "my lungs went bad on me" and was unable to return to work after a short hospitalization.

Morris, a 10-year-old resident of nearby Fayette County, began experiencing breathing difficulties in 1938.

"I can't eat but one meal a day," Morris said in his breathless, rasping voice. "I can't remember what it feels like to these men who gave up their health and lives receive a fair deal."

Besides Hechler, the association has received considerable support from Sens. Robert C. Byrd and Jennings Randolph, fellow West Virginian Democrats.

Rasmussen does not cast the coal industry as the only heavy.

"It all reverts back to the union (United Mine Workers)," he said. "It is possible to eradicate this disease right now in this country as the Australians have ... providing there's enough pressure brought to bear on the industry."

"That can only come," he charged, "if the union sees to it that the industry adheres to the 1969 law."

The troubled union refuses this. Former UMW Vice President George Titler says, "The current (union) administration has more than lived up to its obligation of fighting for miner health and safety. The coal industry is safer now than it has ever been."

The past track record has been a frustrating one for many miners and their families.

Of the thousands of claims filed in West Virginia in recent years, about 45 per cent have been approved. In Kentucky, only 33 per cent of the benefit applications made have met with success.

"Coal miners are not the type of people to try to get away with something," Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., has said. "Too many miners and widows filing for benefits have told me they're made to feel they are on one side of a law suit with the U.S. Government on the other."

The frustration has led to a new phenomenon here—Black Lung activism.

"Our organization is tired of having the stricken miner ignored," West Virginia Black Lung Association President Arnold Miller explained. "We were formed to see to it these men who gave up their health and lives receive a fair deal."

Besides Hechler, the association has received considerable support from Sens. Robert C. Byrd and Jennings Randolph, fellow West Virginian Democrats.

State Fair Efforts Discussed

Missouri will stage a million-dollar State Fair this year, W. C. Askew, Fair secretary, told the Kiwanis Club Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel.

Askew said the Legislature appropriated $240,000 for the Fair, with the balance to come from Fair earnings. He said an attendance goal of half-a-million persons has been set this year so the Fair can break even.

Tracing Fair improvements over the last seven years, Askew said receipts went from $431,000 in 1965 to $719,000 last year, and that premiums jumped from $129,000 in 1965 to $333,000 in 1971.

Askew said $100,000 has been spent to repair old buildings on the Fairgrounds, which will extend their life another 25 years. He also pointed out that the Fair has been extended to 10 days this year to accommodate the ever-increasing number of exhibitors, especially in livestock divisions. He stressed the need to keep the accent on agriculture at the Fair.

The Fair secretary said he has a 30-day option on another 60-acre tract for expansion of the Fairgrounds, the last that would be offered.

Jim Ryan introduced the program and also received birthday greetings from the club.

Chuck Lawrence explained a request for funds from civic clubs to help defray the costs of sending the Junior Babe Ruth All Stars to the regional tournament in Fargo, N.D. President Jim Woods convened a special board meeting, and $150 was voted for the purpose.

The Rev. Roger Williams, who also gave the invocation, was a guest of the Rev. Robert Magee, and Leroy Iuchs was a guest of John St. Clair.

Singing was led by Abe Rosenthal, accompanied by Mrs. Keith Maynard.

Donations For Sale Are Sought

A sale scheduled for 10 a.m. Wednesday at the Henry Ash residence on South 65 Highway will go a long way toward raising money for a very special type of camp for diabetic youngsters.

The camp is for diabetic children from ages 9 to 11 and will be held at Camp Keown near Holts Summit. Sponsored by the Central Missouri Diabetic Association, the camp will be staffed with physicians specializing in diabetes, experienced nurses, dieticians and a counselor.

According to Mrs. Carl Goist, Route 2, chairman of the Sedalia-Pettis County branch of the association, this camp affords one of the few times and, for many, the only time during the year when a diabetic child can be away from home for more than just a few hours.

Anyone wishing to donate any item for the sale should call 827-0543 or 226-7528 after 5 p.m. Soft drinks and sandwiches will also be sold.

Requesting Suits For Contributors

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Attorney General should file suits to revoke charters of any banks that are giving financial support to candidates for treasurer. Larry Carp, who's seeking the Democratic treasurer nomination, said Thursday.

Carp said his two opponents, in the primary, E. J. Cantrell and James Spainhower and Republican candidate George Parker "have all publicly admitted that they have accepted financial contributions from banking representatives for their campaigns."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new report on consumer food spending shows farmers fared better during the second quarter of this year than during the comparable three-month period in 1971.

During April-June, the Agriculture Department reported Thursday, a "market basket" of supermarket food items cost consumers an average annual rate of $1,290.

Of that, the "farm value" or producer's share of the total bill, was $513 or 8.1 per cent more than in the second quarter of 1971. The middleman portion—for transporting, processing and selling—averaged $777 in April-June, up 1.0 per cent from a year earlier.

Kidney disease is the fourth largest killer in the United States.

Using similar comparisons, the report showed the farmer's share of the market basket cost increased 22 per cent from April-June 1967 but only 8.0 per cent above 20 years earlier.

The middleman share, meanwhile, rose 17 per cent from 1967 and 56 per cent from 1952, according to the report.

Only food items produced on U.S. farms are included in the market basket list, which theoretically is enough to feed a typical family for one year. Seafood and imported products are not covered.

Noting the third quarter rise in the farm value of the market basket, the report said higher returns for meat animals and fresh fruits accounted for most of the increase. Gross returns for poultry and eggs, however, dropped sharply.

Reviewing the 1971 market basket situation, officials said consumers spent $111.1 billion on farm-produced food, up 4.9 per cent from 1970. Of the total expenditure, middlemen got $75.3 billion, up 5.9 per cent, and farmers $35.9 billion, a 2.9 per cent gain.

Modular Home Vote Delayed

The Sedalia Planning and Zoning Commission will make a favorable recommendation to the City Council on one rezoning request but tabled a bid to replace a modular home on a plot of land at 1306 East Ninth at their Thursday night meeting at City Hall.

A request by Mrs. Clarence Trotter, 1306 East Ninth, to place a modular home on a permanent foundation was tabled by the commission when questions over compatibility of the structure and the city building code arose.

Following a brief executive session, Bob Cain, chairman of the commission, explained the group felt it did not have enough specific information dealing with the construction of the modular home to vote on the proposal.

Mr. and Mrs. Trotter said their home burned on the site about one year ago and they planned to maintain the modular home as a permanent residence. Their request will be taken up again at next Thursday's meeting.

A proposal by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Trotter, 1306 East Ninth, to rezone a five acre tract of land east of Ohio between 24th and 28th streets from M-1 (light industrial) to R-1 (residential) was approved with little discussion. According to Boul, plans are being made to construct a home on the site.

McGovern Is Considering Muskie As Running Mate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern said Thursday he is considering Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine as a possible running mate, and he criticized the system under which he must make a choice.

"One of those that I've asked other political leaders to comment on has been Ed Muskie," McGovern told newsmen.

Whether he will ask Muskie to serve as Missouri Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's replacement as the Democratic vice presidential candidate has not been decided, McGovern said.

But, McGovern added, "I'll talk to Ed Muskie" before deciding who to seek.

At the same time, McGovern seemed to throw cold water on speculation that former Peace Corps Director R. Sargent Shriver is being seriously considered for the vice presidential nomination.

Asked whether he or any of his staff have contacted Shriver about the vice presidency, McGovern said: "not to my knowledge. I have not."

Meeting in his Senate office with about a dozen newsmen, McGovern insisted he has not decided on a replacement for Eagleton.

He said he is continuing to confer with political and labor leaders around the country and said he had talked with former President Lyndon B. Johnson Thursday about the matter.

Earlier, McGovern's national political director, Frank Mankiewicz, had said the decision would be announced no later than Friday night. McGovern said only that it would come before the Tuesday meeting in Washington of the Democratic National Committee which must approve the senator's choice.

Paving Way For New Assault

SAIGON (AP) — American planes and naval guns hit Quang Tri with a massive bombardment Thursday, paving the way for a new assault on western sections of the city by more than 2,000 South Vietnamese marines.

Heavy enemy artillery fire and house-to-house fighting slowed the marine attack aimed at destroying the North Vietnamese garrison inside the 19th century Citadel in the heart of the city.

More than 40 U.S. B52 bombers hammered North Vietnamese troop concentrations on the northern front, up to 18 miles from Quang Tri, while F4 Phantom jets and carrier-based planes pounded enemy positions on the fringe of the battle, the U.S. Command announced.

Five 7th Fleet destroyers, the Rupertus, Davidson, Mullinix, Floyd Parks and Sample, sailed close to shore, adding their guns to the bombardment.

Eight miles down the coast at the U.S. air base on Da Nang, one American and one Vietnamese were killed and 20 Americans and one Vietnamese wounded when nearly 40 enemy 122mm rockets slammed into the compound.

It was the second rocket attack on an American base this week. Nearly 90 rockets blasted the Bien Hoa base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, Tuesday, killing one American and wounding 31.

In the air war against North Vietnam, the U.S. Command reported more than 250 Air Force, Navy and Marine jets attacked supply routes, trucks and depots Wednesday in the continuing campaign to disrupt efforts to resupply enemy troops in the South.

Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from Quang Tri that South Vietnamese tanks supporting the marine attack razed the last few recognizable buildings remaining in the devastated city. The capital of South Vietnam's northernmost province fell to the enemy May 1.

U.S. advisers predicted the fight to regain control of the provincial capital would be "long and tough."

Senate Ratifies Arms Limitation Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday ratified the treaty with the Soviet Union limiting American and Soviet development of defensive missile systems.

The treaty was hailed as an historic first step on a journey toward ending the "mad momentum" of the nuclear arms race.

The treaty was ratified 88 to 2 on a roll call vote. Approval by two-thirds of the Senate was necessary. No House action is required.

It bars the Soviet Union and the United States from creating nationwide interceptor missile systems, limiting ABM deployment to two bases for each nation.

Under it the United States would be permitted to deploy 100 ABM missiles to defend the Capitol at Washington and to protect offensive Minuteman missiles at Grand Forks, N.D.

The Soviets would be permitted 100 ABM missiles at the present defense of Moscow and at another site east of the Ural mountains.

The treaty is a companion piece to an interim five-year agreement intended to slow the pace of the offensive arms race while both nations work on a permanent treaty in that area. The agreement, now awaiting Senate action, also must be approved by the House, where it is awaiting action by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

One of the senators to oppose the treaty as being against the best interests of the United States was Sen. James Buckley, Con-R, N.Y. who said the United States should not deny itself the means of defending millions of civilians against nuclear attack.

Some senators are opposed to building even the ABM site at Washington and the military procurement bill passed this week by the Senate contained no money for it.

Authorization of the American ABM system by Congress was accomplished by narrow votes.

The Nixon administration contended ABM was needed as a bargaining chip with the Soviets in the strategic arms limitation talks.

Senate debate continued on the interim five-year SALT agreement.

With backing from the Nixon administration, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., sought to impose new "reservations" on the agreement.

The administration's support for the move was termed a bombshell by one Democratic senator. Others opposed it as an unwelcome note of distrust on which to LaMONTE — Timothy Ray Coffee, 15, LaMonte, was struck and killed around 7:30 p.m. Thursday while he was walking east on the south side of the LaMonte Cemetery Road, approximately seven-tenths of a mile west of Route 127.

According to the Missouri Highway Patrol, the Coffee youth was struck by the right front of an eastbound 1967 Buick driven by Oscar Lee Green, 16, Route 2, LaMonte.

Coffee's body was taken to the Moore Funeral Home here.

anyone believes the agreement would leave the United States in an inferior defensive posture, he should not vote for it.

All defense department witnesses have testified that is not the case, he said.

"We are immediately summoning up our fears," Javits said, "having no faith in our strengths, and are beginning to notify the Soviet Union we don't trust them and don't trust ourselves."

The treaty would limit the United States and the Soviet Union to two defensive ABM sites and 200 interceptor missiles each.

Jackson's amendment would be attached to the authorizing resolution of the treaty which attempts to set temporary limits on the momentum of the offensive arms race while the United States and the Soviets try to work out a permanent treaty.

Testimony Concluded With Bremer's Diary

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Testimony concluded Thursday in the trial of Arthur Herman Bremer after the jury heard an anguished, often jumbled diary in which the defendant detailed the stalking of President Nixon and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama.

The four-day hearing in Prince Georges County Circuit Court went into an afternoon recess. Considering a defense motion, Judge Ralph W. Powers dropped for insufficient evidence four of the 17 charges against the defendant.

The charges dropped accused Bremer of assault with intent to maim Wallace and three other persons wounded by .38-caliber pistol, fired May 15 at a political rally at a Laurel, Md. shopping center.

Remaining were four counts each of assault with intent to murder, assault and battery, and using a handgun in violation of Maryland law and one charge of illegally carrying a handgun.

Arthur A. Marshall Jr., the state's attorney, said the remaining assault charges are duplicative, meaning the jury could find Bremer guilty of only one set.

Marshall also said the four counts dropped were duplicative of the other assault charges.

Final arguments and instructions to the jury by the judge are scheduled to begin Friday morning, after which the six men and six women will begin weighing the evidence, deciding first whether Bremer was legally sane.

Bremer has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. The jury will have to resolve conflicting testimony on this key point from psychiatrists called as witnesses by both sides.

Marshall said conviction on all remaining counts could bring Bremer a maximum of 123 years in jail. If the jury finds him legally insane, he would be committed to a Maryland mental hospital for a minimum of 90 days, at which time he could petition the court for a sanity hearing.

The 114-page diary, laced with four-letter words and lamentations of failure, described how Bremer pursued Nixon with a pistol during an April visit to Ottawa, Canada, retreated in despair to Milwaukee, Wis., and then settled on Wallace while watching the film, "A Clockwork Orange."

The 21-year old former busboy and school janitor did not take the witness stand. He frequently laid his head on the defense table as the jury heard his private thoughts read by his lawyer, Benjamin Lipsitz.

"From the very beginning, I planned to get him (Nixon) at the Ottawa military airport addressing a happy Canadian crowd," wrote Bremer, who was denied entrance to the airport and had to take a position along the motorcade route into the Canadian capital.

Leading candidates among Democrats

From the field of Democratic candidates in Pettis County races, The Democrat-Capital makes the following endorsements.

Of the two Democrats seeking the office of sheriff, Emmett Fairfax is the obvious choice. The incumbent sheriff, now seeking his fourth consecutive term, has proved to the people of Pettis County that he is a law enforcement officer of the first rank.

Fairfax also has earned the confidence and respect of both his colleagues and state authorities. He is immediate past president of the Missouri Sheriffs Association, and the only sheriff who is a member of the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council.

In our opinion Sheriff Emmett Fairfax is the clear-cut choice over his primary opponent, Jack M. Austin.

For the Democratic nomination as Pettis County coroner, Dr. John Owens, M.D., would be the best selection. A practicing, board-certified pathologist, Dr. Owens is clearly the choice over his opponent by virtue of his training and experience.

Pettis County has been fortunate in the past to have had the services of physicians in the important post of coroner, and we would hope that this will continue to be the practice.

Of the four candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for recorder of deeds, Naomi Brown would appear to be the most qualified. Her 21 years as deputy recorder give her a clear edge over other candidates in experience and familiarity with the office.

For county judge of the Eastern District, The Democrat-Capital believes Judge E. L. "Red" Birdsong should be returned to office. Birdsong's long experience in county government gives him a lead over his primary opponent, Bennie Hatfield.

Because three men, to our mind, of almost equal calibre are seeking the Democratic nomination for judge of the Western District — Howard Blakely, Chester Feaster and Ellis Ulmer — this newspaper has no endorsement to make in that race. We feel residents of the western part of the county would be well represented regardless of who wins the nomination.

Likewise we make no endorsement for the Democratic nomination as county assessor, a race that sees Mrs. Leanna Horn and Charles T. Stockstill challenging incumbent Jerry Trotter. But we would recommend that voters give this important county office their serious attention, voting for the most qualified candidate.

All during the Democratic convention, Uncle Teddy sailed back and forth like the man without a country, awaiting word by signal lamp from shore that McGovern had selected a running mate.

Buchwald

The nieces and nephews love their Uncle Teddy, but four days at sea is a lot for anyone, and Teddy had his hands full preventing a family mutiny.

When his wife Joan finally signaled Teddy that McGovern had chosen Tom Eagleton, Teddy pulled into port and gave everyone his solemn word that they would not have to sail with him again for the rest of the summer.

You can imagine the spot Teddy was in last week when the Eagleton furor was at its height, and Teddy was once again being discussed as the only candidate to be second man on the Democratic ticket.

As soon as the news broke, Teddy ordered his sailboat ready and provisioned for a month. Then he started rounding up his nieces and nephews.

"Who wants to go sailing with their Uncle Teddy?" he shouted in the Kennedy compound.

The older kids ran and climbed up on the roofs. The younger ones hid under Ethel Kennedy's and Eunice Shriver's skirts.

"You said we didn't have to go any more," one of his nephews, Anthony Shriver, shouted from behind a chimney.

"How did I know the nominations weren't over?" Uncle Teddy protested. "It will only be for a few days, maybe a week at the most."

"Why do we have to go with you?" Christopher Kennedy asked from under his mother's skirt.

"Because if you don't, it will look as if I'm just going to sea to avoid accepting the vice presidency. If I have my nieces and nephews along, it will look as if we planned the sail as a family holiday."

Ethel, who was holding on to four of her children, asked, "Why don't you stay onshore? The press can't reach you if you hide in the house."

"It isn't the press I'm hiding out from. It's George McGovern."

The only place he can't get to me is on the sailboat."

Eunice Shriver said, "We gave our children in July. Why do we have to give them again in August?"

Teddy climbed the roof of Ethel's house and tried to grab Bobby Kennedy Jr. by the leg. "We sail in an hour," he yelled. "I don't have time to fool around."

Ethel and Eunice started to cry. "I guess we have no choice," Ethel sobbed. "Stop chasing them. We'll give them to you, but this is ABSOLUTELY the last time."

The mothers took their screaming children down to the dinghy. "Go with Uncle Teddy," Eunice said tearfully. "He'll give you a nice sailboat ride."

After tying his nieces and nephews to the gunwales, Teddy rowed to his sailboat while the photographers took pictures with telescopic lenses.

Several people reported seeing Teddy's boat sailing around and around Nantucket Island last weekend. They're sure it was Teddy's because every once in a while a child jumped overboard and tried to swim ashore. But Teddy managed to drag them back.

From columns to compost pots

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, Va. — These are vacation days for me, after a manner of speaking. Column deadlines have to be met, and radio-TV commitments have to be kept, but this period between political conventions offers time to find pleasure in the glories of gardening and in the life and times of Rappahannock County.

The best of all ways for a man to find pleasure in the glories of gardening is to find pleasure in the glories of his wife's gardening. This relieves him of both responsibility and labor, but permits him to share equally in the harvest. By dispensation of Providence, my wife has green thumbs, while I have — ah, thumbs. She works; I admire.

We are nuts, in a modest way, on this business of organic gardening. Such gardening involves an abiding commitment, to paraphrase the Prayer Book, to the earth: All things come of thee, O soil, and of thine own have we given thee. Just about anything that grows goes back — and more besides.

This means compost: Grass cuttings, shredded leaves, kitchen garbage, and because we live in cattle country, an occasional seasoning of dried meadow muffins. The stuff mounts up, rich beyond the dreams of J. Paul Getty, and up here we need it.

For the Good Lord, when He got around to making Rappahannock County, was thinking in terms of rocks and red clay. Without compost, the most patient raking yields nothing but sullen clods. But once a few cart-loads of compost have been dug in, and turned over, and dug in again, the plot begins to smile and the earthworms appear. One of these days, so help me, I shall compose an Ode to the Earthworm. He may be the humblest of God's creatures, but he is a thing of beauty all the same.

Early this year we bought some 2 x 6 planks, and against the advice of Organic Gardening magazine, which is no more infallible than the rest of the press, coated them firmly with creosote. The magazine says creosote will kill every tender root that comes in contact with it, but it's not necessarily so. Anyhow, we built half a dozen in-the-ground frames, each 6 x 12 feet, and another frame 6 x 27, and heaped them knee-deep in compost. Behold our Virginia plantation.

Now, in early August, the lettuce has come and gone, and the snap beans have had it, but everything else is going superbly. We planted one box in black-eyed peas, the Noble Legume, and will harvest the first luxurious mess this weekend. The tomatoes, cucumbers, lima beans and cantaloupes are producing in abundance. Zucchini is what we grow best. You never saw such zucchini. Not even Mr. Burpee, the seed man, ever saw such zucchini. These are zucchini by Cellini; they are works of art.

As one consequence, the kitchen smells heavenly most of the time. It smells of vinegar and dill and the spices that go into chutney. The pantry shelves are glowing topaz and emerald. My function is to sit at the kitchen counter and applaud.

Meanwhile, one reads the Rappahannock says creosote will kill every tender root that comes in contact with it, but it's not necessarily so. Anyhow, we built half a dozen in-the-ground frames, each 6 x 12 feet, and another frame 6 x 27, and heaped them knee-deep in compost. Behold our Virginia plantation.

The lead story last week had to do with a bear that broke into two houses at Broad Hollow, a few miles away. He tore up a door screen and ate a can of bacon drippings. I read the piece aloud to my wife and then glanced out the kitchen window: No bear, but just then a doe and a buck leaped a rail fence in Mr. Mainwaring's pasture, as gracefully as Fonteyn and Nureyev, and waltzed slowly out of sight. After a while, the quail marched up for dinner. Miami Beach, I will tell you, is 10 thousand miles away.

Down to the sea with Ted

WASHINGTON — Whenever the Democrats start searching for a vice-presidential candidate, Teddy Kennedy gathers up all his nieces and nephews at Hyannis Port and goes to sea in a sailboat. In this way, he can be sure that the press knows he is not on the phone giving serious consideration to the offer.

All during the Democratic convention, Uncle Teddy sailed back and forth like the man without a country, awaiting word by signal lamp from shore that McGovern had selected a running mate.

Merry-go-round

U.S. goes soft on Panamanian pushers

in a crossfire between Murphy and Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif.

"Do you have any feelings that the State Department ... is in any way hampering your efforts," demanded McCloskey.

"I think it is a fact of life, Mr. McCloskey, that we have to coordinate our activities with the State Department," said Ingersoll.

"You understand my question?" snapped McCloskey.

"I understand your question perfectly," shot back Ingersoll, by now so angry at his questioners that he slammed his fist on the table. "I am saying there are times when we have to yield on overriding priorities ... Obviously, you do not want to ... permit the Canal Zone to be jeopardized."

Murphy drew from Ingersoll the admission that the State Department was giving top priority to good relations with Panama, not to the narcotics fight.

Murphy recalled that Foreign Minister Tack had rallied when the United States arrested a Panamanian airport official and notorious drug hustler named Hiram Gonzalez. The State Department, instead of raising the roof over the official's heroin dealings, stroked Task's ruffled feathers.

What would happen, demanded Murphy and McCloskey, if another high Panamanian official was caught hustling drugs in the Canal Zone?

Ingersoll, growing angrier by the moment over his uncomfortable role, blurted out candidly: "I doubt if we would arrest another Panamanian citizen in the Canal Zone again, because of the flap that the previous arrest created."

This appeared to be an admission, in effect, that the State Department's indirect pressures had turned the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone into a quasi-sanctuary for Panamanian traffickers.

When Plase balked at confessing this, Murphy demanded in a combat infantry officer's voice: "In a discussion with Mr. Perian of my staff on December 23, did you indicate that you were aware ... the diplomatic passport ... had been signed by Foreign Minister Tack?"

Plase breathed out an honest "Yes."

Footnote: The State Department denied to us that they had blocked arrests of prominent Panamanian drug smugglers in the Canal Zone, saying they merely refused to be consulted before the arrests. But a spokesman conceded no traffickers of note had been arrested in the Zone by U.S. authorities in recent months.

West would have won the trick with the 10 or nine. Should he lead a club, South would score his king. Should he lead a heart the student would ruff in dummy and discard his four of clubs, and should he lead back a diamond the student would win with his jack; cash his ace; enter dummy with a trump and discard a club on the king of diamonds.

DEATH NOTICE

Mrs. Edith Shubert

Mrs. Edith Shubert, 62, formerly of 818 East Ninth, died at the Medical Center at the University of Missouri at Columbia early Thursday morning. She had been in failing health for several months.

She was born at Buffalo, Mo., June 17, 1910, the daughter of the late Fred and Martha Stevens Crabtree.

She was married at Jefferson City Nov. 28, 1930, to James W. Shubert. He preceded her in death Dec. 22, 1960.

Mrs. Shubert is survived by two cousins, Mrs. Mary Bennett and Mrs. Bertha Skinner, both of Slater.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 4 p.m. Saturday with the Rev. S. K. Mabry, Jr., officiating.

Mrs. S. K. Mabry will be in charge of the music.

Pallbearers will be Dave Turner, Dale Fizer, Hugh Dale Fizer, Glyn Fizer, Bobby Jo Brown and Fred Murdock.

Burial will be in the Penninsula Cemetery.

The body is at the funeral home.

Mrs. Dora Heimsoth

Mrs. Dora Heimsoth, 81, Route 1, died at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday at the Lexington Memorial Hospital.

She was born Jan. 3, 1891, in Mora, daughter of Henry and Meta Boeschen Renken. On Dec. 25, 1916, she was married to Edwin Heimsoth, who preceded her in death on Oct. 22, 1964.

She was a member of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Survivors include two sons, Walter Heimsoth, Corder; Ervin Heimsoth, Liberty; and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at the church with the Rev. Roger Bees officiating.

Burial will be in Cole Camp Memorial Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 8 p.m. Friday at the Fox Funeral Home, Cole Camp.

Mrs. Cleo Alice Goodman

RAYTOWN — Mrs. Cleo Alice Goodman, 53, died of cancer Wednesday at St. Luke's Hospital.

She was born in Sedalia and lived in this area for 49 years.

Mrs. Goodman was a Presbyterian.

Survivors include her widower, Stanley R. Goodman, of the home; two sons, Roger M. and Robert F. Goodman, Raytown; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Roberts Sr., Raytown; a brother, Finis Roberts Jr., Richardson, Tex.; two sisters, Mrs. Doris Wessley, Dallas, Tex.; Mrs. Wilma Flannery, Harrisonville; and three grandchildren.

The body was taken to the Ewing Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Missouri Basin Bill Sent to President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress finished work on a $114 million measure authorizing completion of the Missouri River basin water project Thursday and sent the bill to President Nixon.

The Senate, by voice vote, agreed to a House-passed compromise measure providing for completing a series of irrigation, flood control and power-generation units in the basin project.

Senate-House conferees settled on the money figure contained in the version of the bill originally passed by the Senate. Initially, the House had voted for $94 million.

The legislation spells out that the Garrison diversion unit, which has separate authority, is not to participate in funds authorized by this bill.

Seeking Donations For Sedalia Team

A door-to-door fund-raising campaign to help meet expenses for the Sedalia Junior Babe Ruth All-Stars in Fargo, N.D., will be launched in Sedalia Friday morning, officials here reported Thursday. The goal is $2,500, with $500 already donated to the team.

Friday's effort will amount to a ticket sale for the Old Timer's Game Sunday at Liberty Park Stadium. All proceeds will be used for the team. Sedalia and area residents wishing to make a donation may do so at the Pettis County Jail, where they will receive a receipt, it was reported.

The Sedalia team is playing for the regional Babe Ruth championship.

Request for Refund

Refused By Board

The Sedalia Water Board Wednesday evening turned down a request submitted by Ralph Viebrock on behalf of Walnut Hills Development Co. that the firm be granted refunds on each new hookup in the development.

Herb Taylor, department manager, told The Democrat-Capital the board adopted the decision a long time ago that such refunds, available to developers inside the city, would not be granted any developer outside the city. The policy was based on advice from the board's attorney, it was learned.

Taylor explained that an intra-city developer pays for the main line and then is granted the rebate as water users tap it.

Viebrock based the appeal on the fact that many people doubted in 1968, the time of the project's inception, that it would ever be completed or paid for.

Paul Hedderich, president of the board, pointed out that the policy was made clear to the men who initiated the project in 1968. He also noted that several other developers outside the city using city water are treated the same way. Viebrock then asked that, if the policy is ever changed, his firm be contacted.

The board continued discussion of changing the large use rate schedule. Taylor circulated a sheet of figures indicating that Sedalia's water prices for the nine largest users of water are far below any comparably sized area cities. The list included Warrensburg, Springfield, Columbia and Jefferson City.

The proposed increase, although not officially established as yet, would still allow lower water prices based on average cost.

Some changes suggested for the proposed schedule may decrease the number of users affected from nine to only three or four, Taylor revealed. It was decided that the mayor and members of the City Council's fire and water committee would be invited to the next board meeting to get their opinions. The board was granted authority on increases many years ago.

Also, the board voted to approach those firms affected with the figures before enforcing the increases.

It was learned that the department actually subsidizes some industries which use large amounts of water by supplying it for less than cost. The subsidy would be greatly reduced, but not eliminated, by the proposed increases in rates.

It was also pointed out that the current

DES Ban Ordered By FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 14-year-old law prohibiting cancer-causing substances in American food has come under fresh attack from industry and some congressmen after claiming its second major victim, the livestock-feed additive DES.

The Food and Drug Administration announced Wednesday it is ordering a phaseout by Jan. 1 of diethylstilbestrol, fed to 75 per cent of the nation's cattle to speed weight gain and hold down costs.

The same law applied to ban the artificial sweetener cyclamate in 1970, and threatens saccharin, the only other sugar substitute on the market, as well as sodium nitrite, a widely used meat preservative, and Red No. 2, a dye commonly used in food, drugs and cosmetics.

Each is suspected of causing cancer when extremely large amounts are fed to laboratory animals. Saccharin, for example, produced tumors in rats fed an amount equivalent in humans to 875 bottles of a typical diet soft drink daily. Yet if the tumors are found to be cancerous, the sweetener could disappear from store shelves overnight.

The problem, as the food industry and its legislative proponents see it, is that the law is inflexible.

The 1958 Delaney Clause in the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act prohibits the use of any food additive "if it is bound to induce cancer when ingested by man or animals."

As testing becomes more refined, the government is detecting such substances at levels of less than one part per billion (ppb). One ppb has been explained as comparable to one second in 30 years.

"The government soon will be measuring down to parts per trillion and at that time many more chemical additives will be faced with the threat of extinction," said Rep. William Scherle, R-Iowa, as he reintroduced his bill to allow human tolerance levels in such cases.

Congress now has a law on the books, which in effect, requires compliance which nature herself could not match," Scherle has said. Natural estrogens similar to DES are present at up to six ppb in honey and 2,000 ppb in eggs, he said.

The cattle industry, alarmed at the FDA ban on DES, agreed with Scherle's stand. "This FDA action is but another in a series depriving from the inflexible although well-intended requirements imposed by the Delaney clause," said the American National Cattlemen's Association representing 250,000 livestock men.

Joining the attack last week was Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs, who called the clause too "white or black, yes or no."

Picnic Is Planned

The Mid-Missouri Association of the Blind and Physically Handicapped will hold a picnic at 6:30 p.m. Aug. 10 at Centennial Park.

Sedalia merchants have donated food for the event, it was reported.

Sedilians wishing to register for absentee ballots by mail for the Tuesday primary election have until 4 p.m. Friday to do so, County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson said Thursday.

Those wishing to register for absentee ballots in person have a 4 p.m. Monday deadline, Mrs. Wilson added.

No More 'Old Black Joe' for John Amos

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — You'll find John Amos these days working sometimes in television, sometimes in features, sometimes acting, sometimes writing — and almost always smiling.

Amos plays the weatherman on The Mary Tyler Moore Show. Last season he was one of the regulars on The Funny Side. He's now got his biggest feature role to date in the Walt Disney production, "The World's Greatest Athlete," playing with some top actors like Tim Conway and Roscoe Lee Browne.

But he'd really like, most of all, to write. He's always written and only now is he beginning to have some success — he has a script for Sanford and Son in the works now.

Amos says he turned to writing after some traumatic experiences as a boy. He was one of a few black children who were in integrated schools in Newark and East Orange, N.J. In the latter school he came up against a teacher whose subtle racism took a sneaky turn.

Once, she had the whole class read aloud portions of the Paul Bunyan legend. She saved for him the paragraphs in which Bunyan made huge pancakes and, to butter them, got "six niggers who skated over the pancakes with butter on their feet."

This same teacher also made him sing "Old Black Joe" aloud in the school assemblies.

Educational TV Spots Are Presented Daily

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ST LOUIS — An innovative series of educational spot announcements have been launched recently by KPLR-TV to offer a new kind of learning experience for children through commercial television.

The "Mindstretchers," as they are called, were created by a production team from Webster College, working in cooperation with teachers in the school's graduate education program. They were conceived by James Herd, vice president and general manager of Channel 11, and are geared toward the seven to 14 year old child.

HIGH ILLEGITIMACY

WELLINGTON (AP) — Every eighth New Zealand baby is illegitimate and one in five is conceived out of wedlock, according to latest Health Department statistics.

The illegitimacy rate, now one of the highest in the world, has risen from 8.05 per cent of live births in 1962 to 13.34 per cent in 1970—and is still rising.

Almost 38 per cent of unwed mothers are teenagers. Seventy-five per cent of married teenagers conceived their first baby before they wed.

"But it was the Paul Bunyan excerpt that bothered me the most," Amos says. "I kept wondering how people could write that kind of thing. I determined to write something better."

But first he set out to be a pro football player after a good college career at Colorado State.

"I believe," he says, "that I had more tryouts than anybody in pro football history — 13 tryouts over a three-year period. I was a running back and I was dropped 13 times.

"It really wasn't from a lack of ability but a combination of circumstances. Like that first time, with the Denver Broncos. I'd been so eager to get in shape that I worked out at home and pulled a hamstring muscle so I only lasted 24 hours.

"At other times, I was so preoccupied with my other work — acting and writing — that I couldn't memorize the plays. I've always been good at memorizing lines but I had problems memorizing football plays."

He began to have enough success as a writer, first for a local Los Angeles show and then on The Leslie Uggams Show. His acting career blossomed, too.

Now he can afford to forget his football disasters — and maybe time will also blot out those unpleasant memories of Paul Bunyan and "Old Black Joe."

Gay Activists Alliance Protests Characterization of Peter Panama

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Limp-wristed Peter Panama, wearing a polka-dot ascot, sashayed across TV screens and smack into a controversy.

Peter Panama, a regular on AB-TV's summer replacement The Corner Bar, is accepted at the tavern and in the living rooms of many families who don't seem to object to this precedent-making characterization of a homosexual.

But this made-for-TV version of the homosexual, the bon vivant of The Corner Bar, has offended some people. The protest comes from the Gay Activists Alliance which feels that Peter Panama is an "effeminate, inaccurate stereotype" of the male homosexual.

Rich Wandel, president of New York's GAA, agrees that it's significant that the homosexual is now accepted as a regular on a TV show.

"But all it really means is that people aren't afraid to talk about it," said Wandel. "And, unfortunately, they talk about it only on the condition of putting homosexuals into a demeaning role."

The Gay Activists Alliance claims that when homosexuals are accepted and not discriminated against some stereotyping could be done. "However," Wandel said, "we cannot accept this ludicrous stereotype. No more than the black community would accept a watermelon-eating tap-dancing stereotype of a black man."

Vincent Schiavelli, the actor who plays Peter Panama, sees the role differently.

"Peter doesn't lisp, isn't feminine and doesn't do drag numbers," he said. "He is as sexual as everyone else in the place," explains Schiavelli as he rolls his own cigarette — not a la John Wayne, but with a cigarette rolling machine — and inserts the finished product into his cigarette holder.

"People can tolerate Peter in this vein," says Schiavelli. He

Opera Singer To Appear On 'Evening at Pops'

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ST. LOUIS — Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops present "A Night in Old Vienna," with opera singer Roberta Peters on Sunday at "Evening at Pops," the weekly summer concert series aired each Sunday at 9 p.m. on KETC-TV, Channel 9.

Miss Peters, a celebrated star of New York City's Metropolitan Opera, has performed at famous music centers in the U.S. and abroad, since her "Met" debut over twenty years ago.

In recreating the romance and beauty of Old Vienna, Miss Peters begins the "Pops" hour with "Ach Ich Leibe" from "The Abduction from the Seraglio," followed by "Voices of Spring" by Johann Strauss. She also will sing "The Merry Widow Waltz," "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier" and will finish with the "Laughing Song" from "Die Fledermaus."

The Pops Orchestra will be conducted by "Mr. Pops" himself, Arthur Fiedler, will open the festive concert with the "Wien Bleibt Wien March" by Schrammel. They also will play Mozart's "Eine kleine Nachtmusik" and a medley of "By the Blue Danube" waltzes and end with a lively "Feuerfest Polka."

Other Pops concerts will feature folk-guitarist Chet Atkins on Tuesday; violinist Lillit Gampel on August 15; the Boston Ballet company on August 22; and jazzman Charlie Byrd on August 29.

emphasized the point with a long thin index finger. "Peter isn't stupid; he's a warm, funny human being. He's as real as everyone else in the bar and his emotional range is the same. He's not toned down."

Schiavelli understands some of the difficulties in playing such a role. "It's a little curious playing a fag, especially if you're not," he said. "When I did the movie 'Taking Off,' people thought I was a professional pot head for three months." Schiavelli isn't too concerned about appearances. "I used to crochet on the subways. It's such a good thing to do, so structured...one stitch, next stitch. It helps to clear your thinking."

But Schiavelli does object when people compare him to Tiny Tim. Vincent Schiavelli, whose 6-foot four frame is topped by a frizzy head of hair temporarily tamed by a beaten-up Panama hat, says "I don't look like Tiny Tim. He's much more conventional looking."

Although Schiavelli sees Peter Panama as a "likeable fag," the Gay Activists Alliance does not.

The militant gay organization wants to destroy this "monster" from The Corner Bar. And Alan King, producer of the show, who said he took great pains to prevent Peter Panama from being offensive, has agreed to meet with the group and discuss the characterization of the homosexual.

NEW DANCE PROJECT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dance Notation Bureau, aided by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, is training 10 "reconstructors," people with ability to recreate and direct dance scores written in Labanotation.

Labanotation is said to be the most accurate system for recording dance.

Carroll O'Connor

Family Tree of Carroll O'Connor Is Revealed

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Perhaps the greatest tribute that anybody can pay to Carroll O'Connor's acting ability is to day that he's a genuine Archie Bunker.

He isn't, of course. He's a skilled actor playing his trade skillfully. All in the Family's Archie Bunker is an uneducated, uncultured, unpolished man from an uneducated, uncultured, unpolished family background.

Carroll O'Connor is just the opposite. One glance at the O'Connor family tree — it was O'Connor on both sides — is proof that he's from a brilliant, lettered, cultured clan.

To begin with, there were his father, a lawyer, and his mother, a teacher. And there was his grandfather, his mother's father, who was also Carroll O'Connor. This gentleman ran an Irish Weekly newspaper in New York which he started in 1893. It was called The Irish Advocate.

There was journalism on his father's side of the family, too. His uncle, Hugh O'Connor, was a New York Times reporter and family tradition has it that he was the first Timesman to be given a by-line. He covered the League of Nations meetings for The Times for many years.

Carroll, at first, wanted to go into journalism, too, and got a job as a Times copy boy as a teen-ager, without his Uncle Hugh even knowing that he had applied. When his grandfather died in 1946 he left The Irish Advocate to his daughter. Carroll worked for her for 18 months.

He later studied journalism at the University of Montana but gradually became more interested in the theater.

When Carroll's brother, Hugh, wanted to become a doctor, they decided to go to Ireland, where he might have an easier time getting into medical school. Another relative, Dr. Matthew O'Connor, was dean of Dublin's Royal College of Surgeons.

Matthew's son is Ulick O'Connor, the noted biographer of Irish authors Oliver St. John Gogarty and Brendan Behan. So the whole O'Connor family is involved in intellectual pursuits.

One of the great tragedies in Carroll O'Connor's life is that his brother, Hugh, who did become a doctor, was killed in a motorcycle accident in Toledo, Ohio, barely a year after he had started in private practice there.

Mary Tyler Moore will have a "father" next season in a few episodes of her series. He will be played by Bill Quinn, who played her father a dozen years ago in a western she did. Mary had forgotten it but Quinn hadn't. He reminded her when they met again. The first time they have worked together since the old film.

Mary has a great sense of humor. The script girl on her show was looking at some new photos of Mary and said, "Mary, time has stood still for you for the past 10 years." Mary laughed and said, "Yes, with the help of a photographer, lighting man, make-up man, hairdresser and retoucher."

After Dan Blocker's death, manager Dick Linke (Ken Berry, Andy Griffith, Jerry Van Dyke and so on are his clients) called the Bonanza office about another of his clients, big Glenn Ash. A country singer and comedian who has been on TV. Ash is now "the hottest opening act" in the concert business. Ash is reminiscent of Blocker, big jovial looking and, while not a native of Texas, he has a Texas background. But the Bonanza people, as you know, decided Dan was irreplaceable. "Besides," Ash says, "no one on the set could have stood it if someone had walked in in Dan's place."

Jack Jones, during his successful opening at the Century-Plaza's Westside Room (and the room's "closing" opening, if a union dispute with musicians is not settled), told the story of one of his early appearances in a club in Brooklyn. The piano was not good and Jack complained to the owner he couldn't work with that piano. "Wassamatter," the owner asked, "it's good — I just had it painted."

Jack sang a song dedicated to those in the audience having wedding anniversaries. As he checked them out he found several who had been married one year. Finally, he found a couple married some 30 years and he asked "Do you want to keep her?" Then he chuckled, "This sounds like Let's Make a Deal: do you want to keep her or go for what's behind the curtain?"

Woody Allen has been under psychoanalysis for 15 years and he says he has made small progress. "I'm able to work consistently and I feel a little more relaxed with girls."

TV's influence on foreign tourists: Ironside was shooting on location in Pasadena's Huntington-Sheraton Hotel. Guests watched as preparations were made for a stuntman to fall from a balcony and land on his back on the ground 33 feet below. Just as stuntman Steven Cassidy did the fall, a Frenchwoman and her two sons, aged 3 and 4, arrived at the pool. She and the tots were wide-eyed at the fall. But then she looked around and saw no one else was excited so she shrugged in true Gallic fashion and went on her way. But imagine explaining that on a postcard home.

Delores Hope, Bob's pretty wife, is the victim of a freak accident. She came home and leaned over to pet their big dog. The dog snapped his head up and caught her in the nose. She's having X rays to determine if it's broken.

'Man of La Mancha' a Summer Hit Sensation

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Diener vowed "never again" over and over. Richard Kiley once wept at the mere idea of one more performance.

So, of course, it was inevitable the stellar pair now are busy anew in the musical that somehow won't let them go. "Man of La Mancha."

The revival has turned out to be the town's sudden summer hit sensation.

"I was a little gun shy when the idea came up," Kiley says of the turnabout. "and the commitment is only for 12 weeks."

Report of Miss Diener's reaction comes second-hand.

"I don't know you'd want to quote what she said when this was suggested," says Albert Marre, "but there was a shrill cry of terror." Marre is the singer's husband, also the show's first and continuing director.

The original production of the musical, which is based on "Don Quixote" by Miguel Cervantes, closed just last season after a run of almost six years. That sort of remunerative engagement is regularly followed by an extended intermission before any reprise is attempted.

The Lincoln Center management, however, with a theater dark for three months while the resident repertory company is on vacation, came up with the idea of a very special reincarnation.

During the long Broadway run all sorts of cast changes had occurred. Lincoln Center suggested to Marre and the original producers that Kiley, Miss Diener and other members of the initial company be reunited. Theater records show no such similar revival ever, anywhere.

Along with Kiley, in the dual role of Quixote-Cervantes, and Miss Diener, the scullery-heroine of the rusty knight's fevered fantasy, Irving Jacobson was lured back as Sancho Panza. Robert Rounseville as the innkeeper. Of the original complement, the only major omission was Ray Middleton, who has been ill.

Following their stint here in 1965-'66 in the two key assignments, the Kiley-Diener team went to the Los Angeles production. That was followed by separate indentures at such far points as Hawaii, Brussels and Paris. Both were in the London version, but at different times.

Such sustained involvement inevitably bred multiple symptoms of fatigue, exhaustion and determination to participate no more.

"I'm not the type that cries even when someone dear dies," says Kiley, "but I was amazed one night while getting into cos-

Hit Rerun

Joan Diener and Richard Kiley are again playing the scullery-heroine and Quixote-Cervantes in "Man of La Mancha." They are pictured in a dressing room in New York's Lincoln Center where a revival of the hit musical is at present drawing crowds — and cheers. Miss Diener and Kiley were in the initial company, most of which has been reunited in this special reincarnation, itself a unique event in theater history.

Hal Holbrook Plays Role of Dad in Television Movie

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — In the days when I Love Lucy, Milton Berle, What's My Line? and The $64,000 Question were the big things on TV, nobody would have dreamed that the home screen would ever play host to a TV movie like "That Certain Summer."

It's a story of a homosexual. It proves, depending on your point of view, that television has either come of age or else gone to the dogs.

Since it is all done with extreme good taste I think it represents a great stride forward. The problem, of course, is that it might open the door to other things done with poor taste by the inevitable exploiters who will seize on the chance to make a cheap, sensational product.

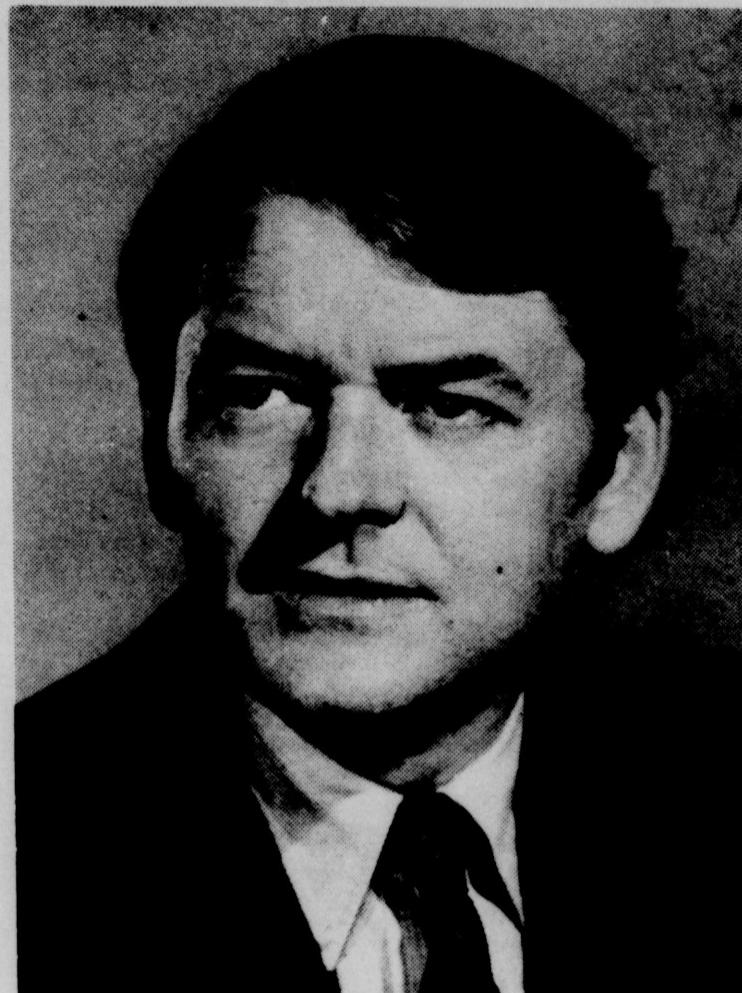

That's in the future. The networks will have to guard against that development. Meanwhile, "That Certain Summer" is here, a fait accompli.

It is a simple story of a divorced father whose 14-year-old son comes to visit, finds his father (Hal Holbrook) with a male roommate (Martin Sheen) and eventually realizes that his old man is a homosexual. Scott Jacoby plays the boy and Hope Lange is his mother.

This story, in which the word "homosexual" is only spoken once, was written by Dick Levinson and Bill Link, who do the Columbo portions of NBC's Mystery Movie. They also wrote the TV film, "My Sweet Charlie," based on David Westheimer's novel about a black man and a white girl.

Levinson and Link say that NBC had misgivings about "My Sweet Charlie" originally. After it was aired — and was a hit, winning many awards — they got a letter from an NBC vice-president. He said he was wrong and was apologizing.

Nevertheless, when they approached the network with their idea for "That Certain Summer," they were turned down flat. So they went to ABC with it and ABC said go. It took them awhile to get down to work but once started they say it was the easiest script they've ever written.

Holbrook says the same thing applies to his playing of the leading role. It was hard to get started, to think of the approach to take to the character. But once he began, he says, it has been easy. He is playing the part straight, with no overt homosexual speech patterns or gestures.

Holbrook says he knows many homosexuals and, with the majority of them, you can't tell from looking at them or talking to them that they are not perfectly normal men.

Even though the film treats its subject gingerly, everyone connected with the project is sure it will be controversial.

"There'll be a lot of flak, I'm sure," Levinson says. "There are people to whom the mere mention of homosexuality is a red flag."

Holbrook believes it is a good thing for the public to get to know, via TV, a representative homosexual.

"It's like being in a movie company," he says. "When I'm working in a company — such as this one — I get thrown in with all different kinds of people. People I'd never meet ordinarily. But when you get to work with them for a few weeks, you realize they're like everybody else."

"I think that same thing applies to this movie — the public will get to see a homosexual, a person they'd never ordinarily see, and hopefully will realize he's a human being just as they are."

After this Holbrook does a feature film and in August begins rehearsals for his fall opening on Broadway in Arthur Miller's new play, "The Creation of the World and Other Business." He'll play Lucifer in the play, which also has God and Adam and Eve as main characters.

LET YOUR FAVORITE GARAGE OR SERVICE STATION CARE FOR YOUR CAR

We feel sure that most car owners are aware of the importance of preventative maintenance as far as their cars are concerned. A tune-up . . . a check-up . . . body repair when the rust first sets in will pay big dividends in the long run. A car is a comparatively large investment. It's well to protect it. That's why we suggest that you take it to your favorite garage or service station or back home to the new car dealer where you purchased it for regular service and check-ups.

Documentary On Jails To Be Presented

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ST LOUIS — Television viewers who saw Channel 11's dramatic documentary "Don't Go To Jail in Missouri" one year ago had a special insight into the causes of the recent St. Louis City Jail uprising.

Now the program is to be repeated, at 8:30 p.m., Saturday, to give more citizens an inside look at local jails described as "old, inadequate, ineffective and dangerous."

KPLR-TV public affairs director Harriett Woods took a film crew inside seven jails, both in the metropolitan St. Louis area and outstate Missouri. "It was our hope that the shockingly bad conditions we revealed would change public apathy about jail conditions. Some improvements have been made in a year: more citizens are involved. But the recent incidents at St. Louis City Jail prove that much remains unchanged."

Highlights of the one-hour color special include an interview with Iron County Sheriff Ogie Selinger and a visit inside the Palmyra, Missouri, jail which was built in 1858 and housed civil war prisoners. Sheriff Clarence Basler of Ste. Genevieve explains the damaging effects from lack of money to protect society from prisoners, as well as the prisoners from each other.

Police Chief Arlo Baldwin and Matron Mignone Killian discuss the specific problems plaguing the ancient police station and jail in Mark Twain's Hannibal, and a brutally vivid picture of the overcrowded Municipal Jail of St. Louis displays the conditions which contributed to the recent inmate rebellion.

Mrs. Woods talked with Charles Mann, author of the 1968 State Report on Missouri Jails and current executive director for the Bureau of Men. In his report, Mann stated that "prisoners sit in idleness, despair and isolation from the community, daily becoming more hostile, apathetic, and dependent, and less capable of meeting the responsibility of normal citizenship."

An on-location interview with Robert Gruensfelder, St. Louis County Director of Adult Correctional Services, provides a ray of hope in the dismal picture of prison conditions.

Silent Films To Be Shown On Television

(Democrat-Capital Service)

ST. LOUIS — Old-time movies return with "The Toy That Grew Up," a nostalgic series of silent films shown in their entirety with informative commentary and authentic background music, to be aired each Sunday at 4 p.m., beginning August 6, on KETC-TV, Channel 9.

"The Toy That Grew Up" traces the history of the film through the stars of the silent screen, including Carole Lombard, Gloria Swanson, Mabel Normand, Tom Mix, Lionel Barrymore, and Boris Karloff.

Some of the films included in the series will be "Mickey," starring comedienne Mabel Normand; "Judith of Bethulia," D. W. Griffith's ("Birth of a Nation") first full-length feature film; Mack Sennett's Keystone Cops in "The Desperate Scoundrel," replete with a villain, a heroine, and the great chase scenes; the first episodes of "The Perils of Pauline"; "The Heart of Texas Ryan," starring Tom Mix; and Lionel Barrymore and Boris Karloff in "The Bells," a murder story.

The first two programs will focus on "Cops, Comics and Girls," Sunday and August 13 covering some of the early films of producer Mack Sennett from 1913 to 1928. Program one includes "Ragtime Band," starring Ford and Mabel Normand, and "A Movie Star" with Mack Swain. Program two includes "Danger Girl" with Gloria Swanson, and "Run, Girl, Run" with Carole Lombard and Daphne Pollard.

Because of the varied length of the unedited films, later programs in the series will begin earlier than 4 p.m.
